Language Understanding Intelligent Service

The team at Microsoft Research Redmond has been working on a project called Language Understanding Intelligent Service (LUIS) for a number of years. The goal of the project is to make it easier for developers to add natural language understanding to their applications. The team has been using Bing as a test bed for the project and has been working with the Bing team to integrate LUIS into Bing.

Original Layout